A Native Android App To Manage Your Portfolio In Easier Ways When it comes to portfolio management, there is no app that can make it easier and more interactive than CryptoPortfolio. This app was created by an individual named Zachary Copeland. He is a 33-year old self-proclaimed entrepreneur and cryptocurrency fanatic. So, with the intention of learning Ethereum, he began developing this app which eventually gained popularity as it is available in the Google Play Store and AppStore. Additionally, the app is versatile as it allows users to set portfolio allocation, view gains and losses, and overall portfolio statistics and forecast. The app has a rating of 4.6 on the Google Play Store and 4.4 on the App Store. With the number of cryptocurrencies in the market in the billions, it's tough to keep track of them all. Furthermore, with the introduction of futures and ETFs, a lot more money and money managers are dealing with all of this. Especially those that are new to this market are at a disadvantage because they have to rely on using third-party software to watch and track their investments. The CryptoPortfolio App is one of the first apps that provides users with an in-depth dashboard that can monitor their holdings and gain more insights about the market. Thus, they can achieve their investment goals more effortlessly. 1) Manage Portfolio Allocation The app allows its users to allocate a particular portion of their portfolio to different cryptocurrencies and set a target rate. For example, a user can commit 10 percent of their portfolio to the Bitcoin Association (the owners of the Bitcoin Cash hardfork) and keep the rest of the investments to other cryptocurrencies. As a result, all the users will receive a commission if the target rate is reached. The app also has the option to allocate to the target amount by time and risk-return tradeoffs. The more you can commit to the target, the more you will receive from the target rate. Additionally, you can allocate to a particular cryptocurrency for every period of time you choose and if it reaches your target, you will receive the commission in that particular cryptocurrency. 2) View Crypto
