AutoLISP is a language that is used for programming AutoCAD. This is a proprietary programming language which is a superset of LISP. AutoLISP was used extensively for programming and scripting AutoCAD for more than twenty years. AutoCAD ObjectARX was a reimplementa-tion of AutoLISP. After a tumultuous stretch, the Phillies (8-16) needed a turnaround at home against a surging Mets club. Cole Hamels had a nice start, but the offense could not score and the bullpen coughed up a pair of home runs. New York has now won four straight, taking sole possession of the lead in the NL East. The Phillies have lost six of seven overall, falling into a tie for fourth in the division. Saturday was the third consecutive start that Hamels has pitched poorly. He lasted only five innings and gave up six hits, including two home runs by Yoenis Cespedes. "We just can't get it right at the moment," Hamels said. "If we can get guys healthy at the same time and put up some numbers, we're going to be in good shape." The only plus came from Shogo Akiyama, who was 3 for 3 with two RBIs. Cody Asche had a double and a sacrifice fly, while Domonic Brown drove in a pair with a single. Hamels worked around a leadoff single in the third by collecting five ground-ball outs. He did not record an out until the fifth and failed to record a strikeout until the ninth. Akiyama was 3 for 4 with two doubles in the fifth, which proved to be the only run the Mets would allow. He was thrown out at the plate in the eighth by David Wright, who ended his season with a torn ACL. The Phillies failed to score more than three runs in any of their last six games. Hamels gave up a career-high 10 hits in five innings, matching his season-high total of hits allowed. Brown drove in Asche with a single in the first before Rollins hit a drive into the right-field stands in the second. He was plunked in the third by Seth Lugo
